[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ARIZONA MINER]

PHENIX, Maricopa County, A. T., January 30, 1874.

The ditches are all dry. The Swilling Irrigating Canal is the most important one in the Valley, upon which it is estimated there and the latter captured by Maj. Brown's is as much grain as on all the others. At a meeting of the stockholders of that ditch, on Tuesday, a part of the members thought it from a trip to Prescott, Wallapai mit impossible to clean out in time to get water to save the grain, and abandoned all their right therein. The others will begin cleaning out on Monday. Those who secoded propose taking out a new ditch. The cost of repairing the dam and ditch of the Swilling company has been variously estimated at from $25,000 to $35,000. The planting of grain has ceased, and some say that the grain already in will be ruined, while others contend that not more than one half will be lost. At present, it is impossible for any person to approximate the damage, as it depends prin-cipally on the ditches being repaired in good time. The Tempe ditch is said not to have been injured very seriously. Mr Van Orman, from over the river, tells me that the Prescott and Maddox ditches are improved and the Enterprise ditch entirely ruined by the flood. The Little Giant, (also known as the Collins ditch), is said to have been washed out wider and deeper by the water. The Griffin ditch was badly damaged. The peo-ple living on Salt River and Monterey ditches say that they are not injured nearly as much as was expected. Work will commence on all the ditches on Monday or Tuesday next. Since the last storm the weather has been warm and pleasant, with slight indications of ground was broken by Mrs Gen Crook, and

This spring flows 40 or 50 inches of clear, crystal water, and so very warm that it is uncomfortable to bathe in, at the head of the spring. I know not what mineral properties this water contains, but have sent a small bottle to California to have it analyzed. This spring is in a beautiful place, surrounded with fine scenery, and if the water prove possessed of medicinal properties it will certainly be a place of resort in a few years.

Verily, the carryings on sav of "strong governments," and should warn our people of the inequality existing between the rich and the poor in the great metropolis of the "Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave." It may be that some European demagogues and agitators are taking active parts in this Parisian business, yet, it is not at all unlikely that there is great suffering and sympathy for the Commune among our poor countrymen and women, who are neglected by the capitalists and immigration agents. The lesson of all this is is that the East is overcrowded, and such being the case, the Federal and State Governments ought to encourage the extra poor to come west, where they can, by labor, earn an honest living.
